How PAPER COLLARS ARE MADE. - A correspondent describes the process of making paper collars and cuffs at a factory in Biddeford, Me. The paper from which they are formed comes in large sheets of the required branches of the profession. thickness. Some torty of these sheets are placed one upon another, and then moved under the die which cuts through the whole, giving the requisite shape to forty collars.-The paper is then moved under the die again, and forty more cut, and so on to the end. The button holes are next made. Some half dozen collars are placed under the dies, and the three holes cut in each instantly. Next the collars are placed one at a time under a die or mould which impresses the stitching upon them and marks the line by which the collar is to be turned or doubled. The collars are then doubled or turned over one at a time by hand, run through a machine which presses them, and they are finished. They are then packed in boxes of ten each, and ten of these boxes put in a larger one, when they are ready for

The cuffs are cut with dies after the same manner as the collars, the button holes cut by similar method; they are stitched and then made-plain enamel and linen surface, the paper being finished in a particular manner for 14 and 15 inches. The present capacity of this manufactory is 25,000 collars a day, but with BLACK CROOKS, MARGUERITAS, &c, a new cutting machine nearly ready, its capacity will be more than doubled. Most of the work is done by temales. Twelve hands are now employed, but in the autumn double this Pendants and Ornaments.

SMALL FARMS.—Since the war, says the Winchester Times, it is impossible for a great many of our large landholders to cultivate their farms, and owing to this fact there is a vast amount of good farming land now lying idle. This land instead of being a benefit to the owners is an expense, they paying taxes on it all the time. Now we think that the best thing that our farmers can do is to divide their immense farms into smaller tracts, in order to put it within the power of the laboring class to purchase them. In this manner they would soon dispose of all their land which is now lyof people that would put it in cultivation, and by this means the wealth and prosperity of the by this means the wealth and prosperity of the country would be increased ten fold.

There is no doubt, but that if the large farms were thus divided, they would be immediately sold. Let our large landholders adopt this plan, and it will be but a short time until all the land in the country will not only be in cultivation, but the value of it will be doubled. And, in addition to this, the country would made for every ten days, or parts thereof. soon be filled with laboring men, who would be property holders, and consequently would feel a much greater interest in the welfare and prosperity of it. If we want good citizens in the country, we must get men who have some interest in it, and this is the best way we can think of to attain this object.

A WARM SUNDAY INCIDENT.—The followiog amusing incident is related in the Cortland

"A very amusing affair occurred last Sabbath morning in a church not far from this village. The clergyman was discoursing as eloquently as the state of the weather would permit, yet one of his auditors, a young lady was value received. so overcome by the heat as to fall asleep in the midst of the discourse. Those behind her were somewhat amused, observing her efforts to keep her head in a perpendicular position look around just as the lady's head was going over backwards, supposed she had fainted, and springing to his feet, called out to the minister to stop and send down from his desk a tumbler of water; which request was immediately complied with, and a copious supply of water was administered to the somnolent young lady before she had time to fairly recover herself. A number of sympathising ones gathered about her, but she soon retired from the audience-room with a face too crimson to comport with a fainting fit. When she sleeps in church again, it will probably be with one eye open.

REMARKABLE FECUNDITY. - We briefly stated on Friday last that a German named John ous day followed to the grave his thirty-third NEW GOODS. Haeffler, living in this city, had on the previchild, and that he was the father of thirty seven children. Since then we have learned some further particulars of this remarkable case. Haeffler was married three times. His first marriage took place in Germany when he was twenty-one years of age. With this wife he had seventeen children. At four successive accouchments triplets, twice twins, and the last a single birth. Shortly after the latter event, the wife died. He was again married, and the issue of the second wife was fifteen children-seven times twins, and the eighth a single child. This wife also died shortly after the last birth. His third and present wife has thus far presented him with five children, one at a birth. The children were nineteen boys at a birth. The children were, nineteen boys the times, at and eighteen girls, only four of whom are now living; but whether the living are all issue of have not ascertained. Haeffler is now fifty-Vigorous constitution.-Lancaster(Pa.) Express.
